Most of the new Canadians were the wives and children of service men.

Of the immigrants 24,009 were of English, Scottish, Irish or Welsh origin, 5,227 were from the United States, 4,654 from northern European countries and 2,174 from other parts of the world.

Almost two-thirds—20,174 were adult females. There were 4,816 adult males and 8,924 children under 18.

The present single class of immigrants, including children, was the trading class totalling 2,141. The others: farming, 903; laboring, 720; mechanics, 1,825; mining, 28; female domestic servants, 248; other classes 28,049.

Meat Contract With Britain

The federal government has signed a contract with Britain to provide a minimum of 120 million pounds of meat for those countries in the minimum of 120 million pounds in 1948.

The prices agreed upon for 1947 shipments is $2.25 per hundred pounds for choice quality red brand, $2.25 for good quality blue brand, $2.10 for medium quality, $1.90 for good quality, and $1.75 for good all on the basis of frozen weight (i.e., Canadian as shown).

The price for 1948 is to be $2.50 a hundred pounds for hinds and $2.10 for cows.

It is not known what elements it would appear that the British will pay approximately 2c less per pound.

Canadian packers are based on domestic ceiling prices, which vary according to the different price zones.

The cartoon depicts a large, dark, billowing flag that dominates the upper half of the frame. On the flag, the word "BARGAIN" is written in large, bold, white capital letters. Below the flag, there is a chaotic pile of money, including several $100 bills and a stack of coins. In the background, a cityscape with various buildings is visible, suggesting a financial or urban setting. The overall tone is satirical, likely commenting on the economic policies or market conditions mentioned in the text.
